The image features ten square mille-feuille cakes arranged in a loose, descending pattern from the top left towards the bottom right. Each cake is composed of several layers of thin, golden-brown phyllo dough, with a thick layer of white cream filling between the layers. The top surface of each cake is decorated with a variety of fresh red berries, including strawberries, raspberries, and blackberries, along with a small dollop of white cream. The entire scene is set against a solid, dark brown background.
